About the Flemington Punk Rock Flea Market

Founded in 2012 by Lee Platt, the Flemington Punk Rock Flea Market brings the strange and unusual to the Hunterdon area while striving to stock the shelves in the local food pantry. This unique vintage, collectible, and artisan event is offered three times a year in Flemington, NJ.

Flemington held its first Punk Rock Flea Market held at Edge Sports in November 2012. Guests included Author Nick Kisella, Ghost Hunters Bruce Tango and Legendary Punk drummer Dr. Chud. Since its inception, the Flemington Punk Rock Flea Market featured other celebrity guests available for autographs and photos such as former child actor Scott Schwartz of The Toy and A Christmas Story fame and David Harris from the cult classic 1979 film The Warriors. Collectors, artists, and unique vendors are set up around the venue displaying their rare and uncommon goods for purchase as a handful of food trucks set up outside the building to tempt your taste buds.
